██████████ MEDICAL TRANSCRIPTION IDENTIFIED AS “BEST-IN-CLASS” BY HEALTHCARE PRODUCTIVITY SOLUTIONS

BRANFORD, CT – Healthcare Productivity Solutions (HPS), an information resource firm that identifies the top vendors in the most vital healthcare service categories, has selected ██████████ as best-in-class for medical transcription. ██████████, headquartered in ██████████, NY, applies proprietary market leading web-based technology to drive a feature-rich and easy to use platform. “What makes this company stand out in a seemingly ubiquitous category is the unparalleled quality of their work,” says Jay Kossman, an HPS principal. “Yes, they have all the bells and whistles and great pricing. But in the end, it’s all about quality.” In fact, the company employs a two layer quality assurance approach where all transcription is performed by specialty-specific professionals and then passed along for diligent review by specialty-specific editors.

██████████’s robust technology optimizes operational productivity with features such as guaranteed 24 hour turnaround, e-signature, one-click faxing &/or mailing of letters to referring physicians, search engine capability, HL-7 compatibility and Fed-Ex-like job process tracking. And since the transcribed information is archived in a secure, HIPAA-compliant off-site location, the system serves as a “poor man’s” electronic medical record, where records are available to the physician online from anywhere at any time. “The feature of greatest interest to providers is probably the e-signature capability, which significantly reduces the need for the billing department to chase a physician for a signature in order to submit a claim,” says Dr. Keith Nelson, another principal with HPS. “And of course the rapid automatic faxing of letters to the referring physician is a great practice builder.”

A physician can either dictate over the phone or into a small digital recorder. If choosing latter, the recorder is dropped into a cradle next to a computer at the end of the day, and with one click, the information is both uploaded to the ██████████ system and copied to the office computer. “The logistics are so simple, they’re nearly invisible,” adds Kossman.
